COLUMBUS GUARD IS DILIGENT

Massachusetts Militiamen Prove Their Ability in Watching Lines.

By United Press.
COLUMBUS, N. M., Aug. 4.—Militiamen from western Massachusetts have been assigned the honor of guarding the base camp. A column of troops is thrown around the entire camp every night. It is a duty of great importance.

The easterners already have demonstrated their efficiency. Colonel W. C. Hayes, commanding the second Massachusetts regiment, will testify to that, today. While inspecting the guard lines last night the Colonel and his Adjutant were riding through a lonely stretch of desert in pitch darkness south of camp.

"Halt" came the sharp command from an alert guardsman. "That's all right, my man," said Colonel Hayes soothingly. "This is Colonel Hayes inspecting the guard." "I don't care you say you are," came the menacing reply. "Dismount and advance to be recognized and don't loiter either."

In the darkness the Colonel could see the dim outlines of the sentry with his rifle leveled.

"And I didn't loiter," the officer said. "I fairly tumbled off that horse and advanced. When the guard recognized me he apologized for causing me the inconvenience. I doubt if any suspicious characters get into camp through the lines."
